MCUpdates

Jason Wong, William Sassi, Hezhu Zhang, Aidan Minnihan, Nick Cali

What is MCUpdates?

- MCUpdates is a website that will provide information based on the films in the Marvel Cinematic Universe. Visitors of the site will be able to find information of three types: one page provides information about the main characters throughout the MCU films, another page gives info about the films that make up the MCU, and the final page offers the latest news about the MCU.

What HTML elements did we use for this index page?

- For this most basic example of what our index page will look like, we utilized the following elements: `<head>`, `<body>`, `<h1>`, `<h2>`, ``, `<ul>`, `<li>`, ``, `<table>`, `<tr>`, `<th>`, `<td>`, ``, `<center>`, and `<img>`.

What do we hope to improve as we continue developing this website?

- We would like to make the index page that we have now much neater than what is presently seen. We would want to have an appealing background that is not just a simple black, as well as a more unique font style and color and page border. In addition, we will want to make the borders around the NEWS, CHARACTERS, and MOVIES tabs neater to make it more visually appealing. The images and some of the text would be better aligned and spaced apart, and the font size and type would be defined without using HTML attributes. All of these changes would be done in CSS so that all of the styling would be more organized. We will, of course, fully implement the timer in Javascript to show the time until the next MCU movie. Finally, we will add more images in order to make the page look less empty in the future; these images will likely correspond to the news, characters, and films that appear on the index page.